

XM Radio's Traffic & Weather programs provide a valuable service to their customers and should not be limited or discontinued because NAB finds them a threat. What kind of free market society do we live in? One where an association can squash competition because they're large, powerful and feel threatened? They can change, adapt or go the way of the dinosaurs and (nearly) IBM.

Respectfully,

Keith Wagner